

My name is Diya Gupta.

The raspberry pis were having issues, so I used mine from 2050. I remember struggling a little bit to set it up, but it was not that bad.

No, I started using a Pi in 2050 and I have continued over the summer and in robotics.

Just what we did in 2050 - I definitely will need to review the Linux commands.

I would say that I am at a 7-8. I think the biggest struggle is that sometimes I accidentally start coding in a different language. I typically have the pseudocode down really well, but sometimes just need to look back at previous work to see how things are coded.

I think my partner and I are both a little confused on how all of this is going to work - i.e. if we work on the same Pi, if we share a Kit and how to work on separate Pis together. But we created a repository and I think that it will go smoothly.
